

AMERICA'S FAVORITE CITIES: THIS YEAR'S WINNERS

TRAVEL + LEISURE

THE STYLE & CULTURE ISSUE

OCTOBER 2008

25 emerging * destinations
where the dollar still goes far

BOOK NOW!

20 GREAT
WINTER
GETAWAY DEALS

#BXBDKDJ *****CAR-RT LOT**R-016
#0293 7323 920#LE 9191FL02 U FEB09

TERENCE F BRENNAN

1422

#28928

183 VISTA OAK DR
LONGWOOD

P00707

.FL 32779-3012

10.08

the style & culture issue

Cover Story

204 Emerging Destinations

From Mexico to the Mediterranean, T+L spotlights five of our favorite up-and-coming seaside retreats (plus 20 more) where the dollar still goes far—and authentic experiences are well within reach.

Also on the Cover

- America's Favorite Cities: This Year's Winners > 191
- How to Pack in 5 Easy Steps > 179
- Book Now! 20 Great Winter Getaway Deals > 32

> 204 Stone Island, near Mazatlán.

COVER The beach by Valentino's nightclub, in Mazatlán. Photographed by Cedric Angeles. Styled by Mimi Lombardo. Hair and makeup by Elsa Canedo/Utopia. Associate fashion editor: Catherine Crate. Model: Yaya/One Management. Dress by Gucci. This page: Swimsuit by Stella McCartney. See Buyer's Guide, page 264.

25 EMERGING DESTINATIONS

From Mexico to the Mediterranean, T+L spotlights five of our favorite up-and-coming seaside retreats (plus 20 more), where the dollar still goes far—and authentic experiences are well within reach.

Read on for our top picks from around the globe.

On Calle Carnaval, in Mexico's Pacific Coast town of Mazatlán.
Dress by Gucci;
sandals, K
Jacques St.
Tropez; bag,
Louis Vuitton;
sunglasses,
Oliver Peoples.
Opposite: An ocean view from the pool deck
at the Casa
Lucia hotel, in Mazatlán's
Old Town.
See Buyer's
Guide, page 264.

Along Playa Olas Altas, in Mazatlán's Old Town. Dress by Carlos Miele. Clockwise from top right: The courtyard at Melville Suites; alfresco dining in Old Town; on Avenida Constitución, in Old Town. Skirt by Roberto Cavalli; top, Theory; bag, Badgley Mischka; necklace, Wendy Mink. The lobby of Casa Lucila; El Clavadista, a popular cliff-driving spot; outside the Teatro Ángela Peralta, in Old Town; a guest room at Melville Suites; on Stone Island, near Mazatlán. Swimsuit by Stella McCartney.

MEXICO

MAZATLÁN

WHY GO NOW During the late 19th century, the Pacific Coast town of Mazatlán was a playground for vacationing members of the German, French, and Mexican aristocracy, who took up residence in the Centro Histórico, or Old Town. Its reputation as an elite hot spot continued through the early 20th century. But in the 60's, the city—just a three-hour flight from L.A.—became a popular port for cruise ships. Soon after, southern California-style strip malls and Señor Frog's restaurants sprouted up along the Zona Dorada, a 12-mile stretch of beach 15 minutes north of the Centro Histórico. And the Neoclassical mansions with 16-foot ceilings and wrought-iron balconies—remnants of Mazatlán's heyday—were abandoned and all but forgotten. Until now, that is.

THE DETAILS The 282 acres that make up the Old Town are experiencing a renaissance, with stylish cafés, boutiques, and hotels opening on seemingly every corner. Local Alfredo Gómez Rubio jump-started the revitalization in 1997 with Pedro y Lola (Avdas. Constitución and Carnaval; 52-669/982-2589; dinner for two $40), a Nuevo Mexicano restaurant named after Mexican actor Pedro Infante and ranchera singer Lola Beltrán. Housed in a 130-year-old Neoclassical building, the former social club, which hosted prominent dance performances in the 1800's, serves regional dishes such as molcajete (chunks of arrachera beef with grilled nopales, onions, and fresh panela cheese) in a wood-beamed dining room.

Soon after, artists Miguel Ruíz and his Belgian wife, Helene van der Heiden, opened Casa Etnika (50 Calle Sexto Osuna; 52-669/136-0139; casaeтника.com.mx), an art gallery and crafts shop. Inside, Michoacán silver necklaces hang alongside colorful paintings by local residents. More galleries followed, as did a complete overhaul of the nearby 1874 Teatro Ángela Peralta (1024 Avda. Constitución; 52-669/982-4446; teatroangelaperalta.com), an 841-seat Italian Renaissance-style theater with an open-air lobby and triple-tiered balconies—all of which helped put the area back on Mexico's cultural map.

In 2007, Conchita Valades de Bocard created Casa Lucila (16 Calle Olas Altas; 52-669/982-1100; casalucila.com; doubles from $185), Old Town's first seaside boutique hotel, built on the site of a 1940's nightclub frequented by John Wayne and Ernest Hemingway. Overlooking Olas Altas beach, the eight contemporary rooms are outfitted with custom-made mahogany doors, Italian ceramic-tiled floors, and local wood furniture. Around the corner, Melville Suites (99 Avda. Constitución; 52-669/982-8474; themelville.com; doubles from $78) is more traditional: it's a 19th-century former nunnery converted into 20 large suites that are brimming with hand-carved armoires and Mexican antiques.

Jaime Flores was a manager at Denver's historic Broker Restaurant for 10 years before returning home last January to help open El Santo y La Panga (1505 Niños Héroes; 52-669/985-4124; dinner for two $78), Old Town's newest addition. The pint-size seafood joint packs in locals nightly, who come for tuna tostadas with chipotle mayonnaise and avocado. "Mazatlán has turned a corner from what it was 40 years ago," says Flores. "It's an exciting time to be here." —JEFF SPURRIER

THIS SPREAD PHOTOGRAPHED BY CEDRIC ANGELES; HAIR & MAKEUP: ELSA CANEDO/TUOPIA; MODEL: YAYA/ONE MANAGEMENT; ASSOCIATE FASHION EDITOR: CATHERINE CRATE