Dallas Spa Scene Gets Bigger and Better

Thursday June 5, 2008

Dallas has long been known for ostentatious spending, but the luxury spa scene has been underserved. Now there are two major new players. The Stoneleigh Hotel & Spa in tree-lined uptown Dallas has just opened its new 5,200 square-foot spa, with a strikingly modern look to complement a $36 million renovation of the legendary Art-Deco hotel. The Spa at The Stoneleigh has six treatment rooms with a jewel-tone palette of soft aquamarine, taupe and rose with bamboo flooring, and features Davi Skincare, a "vinotherapy" line developed by Carlo Mondavi Jr. of the winemaking Mondavi family in California. Meanwhile The Ritz-Carlton, Dallas, opened shop in the the same neighborhood last year with a 12,000 square foot spa with 12 over-sized treatment rooms and larger than life treatments like the Texas Eight-Hand Massage. With five people in the room, I guess it has to be big!
