

The Stoneleigh Hotel & Spa – Meeting Room Descriptions

Penthouse:

Once the private residence of former hotel owner Col. Harry Stewart, the lavish Penthouse was equipped with hidden rooms, a secret passage and a private rooftop terrace. The historic renovation of The Stoneleigh Hotel & Spa has carefully preserved the architectural grandeur of the Penthouse to provide the perfect setting for opulent galas or intimate celebrations. Inspired by the bold 1930s Dorothy Draper interiors, the Penthouse suites are one-of-a-kind settings for weddings, meetings and special events. Located on the 11th Floor, the Penthouse features the Penthouse Gallery, Music Room, Dining Room and Library.

Grand Salon:

The Grand Salon was The Stoneleigh's original ballroom. Like other legendary hotels built during this era, The Stoneleigh had its ballroom on the top floor, adjacent to the Penthouse apartment. One of many restored historic rooms within the hotel, the Grand Salon features tall ceilings, a fireplace, a great open floor plan and expansive windows with views of Downtown Dallas.

Grape Room:

Named for the intricately carved grapes in the wood work, the Grape Room was once Col. Stewart's private library. Located on the second floor, the charming room features a carved stone fireplace, stained glass windows and 500-year-old wood panels.

Terrace Ballroom:

The Terrace Ballroom, which is located on the lobby level, features custom Murano chandeliers, original molded plaster ceilings, three walls of windows and a walk out patio.

Stewart and Woerner Suites:

Located on the 11th Floor, these rooms are ideal for board meetings, break-out sessions or an office setting. Both rooms feature a wall of windows to allow in natural light and give attendees a view of Dallas.
